Update on the EBAA Annual Meetings and the Coronavirus outbreak

02 March, 2020 (Brussels). The safety and security of the participants at the EBAA Annual Meetings is the highest priority for the EBAA.

To ensure that standard, the European Business Aviation Association is in continuous communication with EU authorities, to be equipped with the best decision-making information regarding the association's event, in relation to the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19). EBAA is carefully monitoring their guidance, and all other available information about the situation.

As of this time, EBAA intends to proceed with the Annual Meetings as planned, while working with government and industry experts to inform ongoing decisions. This includes both the AMAC Convention on March 19 and the Annual General Meeting on March 20.

This decision is scrutinised on a daily basis, and could change in the future. EBAA will provide members and attendees with information as this developing situation unfolds.

We invite participants to regularly check our website for updates on:
